

Germ warfare starts in your office!

Today's office environment is more at risk from germs, viruses, dust, dirt and bugs than ever before. On a telephone alone, 2000 bugs can remain live at any one time, so is it any wonder that germs and viruses can spread like wildfire. Just think of the implication if phones are shared, or in hotdesk situations where headsets are interchanged between worker shifts.

Study finds toilet seats cleaner than keyboards!

Keyboards, computer mice and telephones are more infested with microbes than toilet seats, according to the recent University of Arizona study.

"Desks are really bacteria cafeterias," the report says. "They are breakfast bars, lunch tables and everything else, as we spend more hours at the office."

"When someone is infected with a cold or flu bug, the surfaces they touch during the day become germ-transfer points because some cold and flu viruses can survive on surfaces for up to 72 hours," it adds. "An office can become an incubator."
